

One of 2018's biggest success stories, PLAYER UNKNOWN'S BATTLEGROUNDS has sought to unprecedented record-breaking heights and currently sitting on a momentous concurrent play account of over two million on PC.

The battle royale behemoth is now somehow on mobile thankfully, though we all had our doubts as to whether Tencent could cram the gargantuan map and various physics based factors of gameplay onto a handheld.

This new version is pound for pound exactly what they promised your first few matches will likely be spent learning the controls sense of movement or how to survive in a firefight and just where to head first. PUBG mobile brilliantly adds BOTS so you can get some practices. But know that there is a lot to get your head around in pursuit of that elusive chicken dinner.

Well today, I bought you PUBG tips and tricks that this game doesn't tell you at all. Let's begin with PUBG tips and tricks advanced for Chicken Dinner.

PUBG TIPS AND TRICKS

1. Hiding in the bush method: The bush method still totally works though it's been in PUBG's PC and Xbox additions. This is the topmost pubg mobile best tips and tricks. As for months it was assumed that with a general drop in visual quality hiding yourself inside a bush wouldn't be possible in the mobile version. And it's not so, the game does have three texture modes but even on the lowest there are plenty of opportunities to disappear entirely inside some hefty wads of foliage. Providing you're already inside the zone just sit tight and wait until someone comes close for a very easy kill.
2. Unequip your weapon to run faster: Over time you'll quickly realize that every tiny facet of what would-be real-world rule actually applies to PUBG aside from frying pounds deflecting bullets. But we'll get to that later one of the most useful is being able to sprint faster. If you're not carrying anything else useful for making breakneck Sprint's between cover or needing to beat the enclosing death cloud simply. Tap the weapon you've got equips and you'll holster it immediately of course you're more vulnerable now. But simply as a way to traverse the map on foot there's no faster way and hence it is one of the best pubg mobile tips and tricks for beginners.

3. Remove your shoes to move quieter: In a moment of genuinely genius sound design whatever you have equipped foot wise will be reflected in the game sound effects. You'll have to leap into the customization menu to put on some boots after the default barefoot has run its course though leaving them off does have an in-game purpose stealth. Leave your shoes off and though it can be a little immersion braking running around swamp lands and fields without any footwear into this actually makes you move quieter perfect for getting the drop on someone inside and hence it's a great pubg tips and tricks mobile. An Eastern underground bunker or anywhere where playing the angles game is a must be sure to remove your shoes either in the pre-match lobby or the customization window if you fancy a different approach.
4. Use the eye icon to look around: Without moving or revealing your position PUBG Mobile has one of the most impressive control schemes in mobile gaming history. There's everything from toggling fire modes to flicking through downed opponents' inventories and best of all the free look option. Simply hold your finger on the eye icon on the top right and then drag to move the camera around you without your character moving an inch. It's just perfect for surveying your surroundings and so it is an amazing pubg tips and tricks pc. When hiding lying prone or sprinting eye icon is also totally recommend doing this when parachuting in to get an idea of where players are going to be landing around you.
5. Use vehicles to cover huge distances Fast: A basic element of gameplay unlike fortnight's you can drive vehicles wherever the hell you want in PUBG. Jeeps and larger four-wheelers are best for ramming other players as is the buggy. But there are also bikes that can get you to safety whilst minimizing how much space you're taking up in an opponent's view. Just be aware though that hopping out of a vehicle in motion will do damage and leaping out at high speed will kill you. That's said, if a vehicle crashes weren't going fast enough it'll explode into a giant mechanical ball of flames. Which is perfect for making an opening if a group of players are hunkered down behind some cover.

6. Change seats in a car to avoid fire and heal when approaching any car: You've got the option to drive immediately or just sit as a passenger. Though you might think that hanging in the passenger seat is a pointless thing to do while playing solo. Tapping the bottom right grid icon actually means you can wrap around the car letting you evade fire and returning some of your own. Also note that you can heal while in the passenger seat - and there's nothing more inviting than a seemingly empty car just hang in the back preferably in shadow and get the drop on whoever comes your way next.
7. Wear darker clothing to stay hidden: Speaking of Shadows from ghillie suits to ragged t-shirts in-game cover takes on a whole new level of utilization. When it's paired with real-world mentalities. With no enemy outlines or hood knockers hiding amongst tall grass simply just works as does shadows blending in to similarly colored parts of the environment and anything else. You can think of. So, once you unlock a darker shirt and jeans combo use it to alter your path through the environment going from shadow to shadow. It's the nearest things up playing a class in PUBG and evading some pursuers only to Surprise them later on can be a lifesaver not to mention it's funny as hell.
8. You can do a high damage flying punch: Surprisingly basic punching can actually wilt down a health bar pretty quickly but you should never bring a fist to a fire fight. That's said, the game's version of the Superman punch done by sprinting jumping and hitting attack in midair does an even bigger chunk of damage and we'll finish off many wounded players as well as downed enemies. Something of a middle finger way of winning there are few things as satisfying in life as claiming your chicken dinner with the help of a flying haymaker.
9. Backpacks & damage reduction: You can just as easily navigate to it but spend more time exploring and you'll likely come across more clothing items and another backpack or to equip to expand your inventory. Backpack level one starts at 350 units of space with level two increasing that's at 400 and level three following with 450. That is more than enough to hold a few players worth of gear. So always make a point of being prepared for what's to come items of clothing. Also contribute to damage reduction and while full breakdowns of each item can be found online. Know that the game's array of armor vests gives between 30 to 50% damage reduction immediately depending on being levels one two three.

10. The bulletproof Beauty of the frying-pan: The result of testers accidentally giving the frying-pan the same physical qualities as a wall that is not being broken by gunfire and PUBG's kitchenware is bulletproof. By wielding a frying pan and swinging it at just the right time means you can literally swipe bullets out of the way as they come in. Better still if you don't equip the pant it'll sit on your back once again. Auto deflecting incoming fire without you having to do anything and many hilarious kills have been performed with the humble PUBG frying pan.
